A cold hard problem

Short-term shelter plan; community begins on longer term

By MAGGIE HILLERY
Courier staff writer

For more than 90 minutes Tuesday, about 30 local government officials and representatives of community organizations, volunteer workers, churches and The Salvation Army put their heads together at Madison's city hall on an immediate solution and a longer-term plan for caring for the homeless as winter sets in.

The immediate solution for nighttime shelter from the cold was to move the warming station that Madison set up on an emergency basis at the Comfort Station on Main Street to the Bicentennial Park restroom facility, effective that night.

"The emergency warming center will be provided to shelter people from the freezing temperatures as needed. After a thorough analysis of the need and available city property, the center will be moved from the Main Street Comfort Station to the Bicentennial Park facility. This facility is heated, closely monitored, and accessible to city personnel in case of an emergency. This facility will protect those in need while addressing other community concerns and while more sustainable solutions are put in place by the City of Madison and The Salvation Army. I would like to thank our community for their support as we deal with this issue," said a statement issued Tuesday afternoon by Madison Mayor Bob Courtney.

The longer-term plan began to find its footing about 45 minutes into the Monday meeting, although all left

There is a meeting at 6 p.m. tonight, Thursday, at The Salvation Army at Main and Walnut streets to talk about emergency services volunteers. Salvation Army personnel will talk about what it takes to run the shelter. See Saturday's Madison Courier and madisoncourier.com for details on volunteering or contributing in other ways.

Salvation Army kicking off 2019 Red Kettle Campaign

Courier staff report

The Salvation Army of Jefferson County will begin the 2019 Red Kettle Campaign with a Jingle and Mingle Kickoff Dinner this Saturday, Nov. 16, at 6 p.m. at The Salvation Army office at Main and Walnut streets in Madison.

The Jingle and Mingle Kickoff Dinner will include music, a featured speaker, and silent auction items, all to raise funds to begin the Red Kettle Campaign. Tickets are $15 or $100 for a table of eight and may be obtained through The Salvation Army office.

The familiar Red Kettles will be popping up at local businesses around town the day after Thanksgiving. "It's the holiday season and there are many in our community who are in need this year," said Lt. Justin Hartley. "Our goal for the kettle campaign will be $120,000."

The organization is also seeking volunteer bell ringers to fill the more than 3,000 hours of fund-raising through Christmas Eve.

Funds raised through the Red Kettle Christmas campaign help support programs and services in Jefferson County throughout the year and account for a third of The Salvation Army's annual budget. Families in need can receive food and toys during the holiday season. A daily feeding program serves breakfast and lunch Monday through Friday, and serves more than 40,000 meals each year.

"A free dental clinic at The Salvation Army has provided more than a million dollars' worth of dental care in the 10-plus years it has been in existence," Hartley said. "We also provide community service programs such as music, dance and character building programs, summer camp opportunities, Pathway of Hope, Vacation Bible School, and Emergency Disaster Services," he said. "all focused on the Salvation Army's mission to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and to meet human needs in His name without discrimination."

S'Western schools out Nov. 19 as its teachers plan rally

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

Southwestern will cancel school Nov. 19 for a teacher rally in Indianapolis, Superintendent Jeff Bates told the Madison Courier Wednesday Morning.

The school corporation would be among more than 70 districts across the state that have called off school because many of their teachers plan to protest at the Statehouse next week. Brandon Frye, the district's ISTA representative and a business teacher at the high school, told the board 27 teachers from Southwestern are expected to attend the rally.

"Obviously we're not going to find 27 subs ... I think the obvious recommendation would be that we close school that day," Bates said at a Board of Education meeting Monday night. "The teachers — we obviously support them exercising their right to try and get more money, because they certainly deserve it. ... I don't think we can justify having kids here and being able to tell parents or tell people their kid is going to get a good day of education that day, when we've got 27 out now, and it's probably going to be more than that when we get down to it."

Board President Rick Stockdale agreed and expressed support, but said the school corporation needed to come up with a plan for similar events in the future. Parents shouldn't have to take the brunt and plan last minute for daycare on non-emergencies like these, he said.

"There are a lot of schools who are having to take that option right now," Stockdale said. "But moving forward, we need to come up with something to help, so that we don't have to necessarily eat a snow make-up day when it's a non-emergency, or any other thing that comes up like this."

Madison Consolidated Schools will have an e-learning day because of 55-plus teachers rallying next Tuesday, Diana Wehner, Madison's Indiana State Teacher's Association representative and a special education teacher at Anderson Elementary, told The Madison Courier last week.

Madison spokesperson Ashley Schute said Superintendent Jeff Studebaker plans to attend the rally. The Madison Board of Trustees plans to adopt a resolution in support of teachers going at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

Bates said he won't be able to attend because of meetings that day.

Board member Narci Burress noted that a lot of parents in Madison were going to the rally as well. Bates encouraged teachers to get as many supporters to go with them.

"I would encourage, teachers, talk to your students, talk to your parents, especially if we end up taking that day off — which it looks like we probably will — get as many people as you possibly can to go up and support public education," Bates said.

Frye further clarified that the rally isn't just about teacher salaries, but funding for public education overall.

"This isn't just about money for

Indy’s 8 a record low, snow falling upstate

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A blast of arctic cold has set a record low of 8 degrees in Indianapolis, giving Indiana's capital its earliest recorded fall temperature in the single digits. The National Weather Service said Tuesday's record is the coldest temperature recorded in Indianapolis so early in the fall. The closest similar reading was 11 degrees recorded on Nov. 3, 1951. Indianapolis' 8-degree reading is also its earliest recorded single-digit autumn reading. Previously, the city's earliest single-digit fall temperature was 4 degrees recorded on Nov. 22, 1959. The arctic cold was producing heavy lake effect snow along Lake Michigan, dumping heavy snow on parts of northern Indiana. The highest snowfall total as of Tuesday morning was 10.6 inches near Goshen.

Judges suspended for fight involving shooting

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Supreme Court has temporarily suspended three judges who were involved in a fight during which two of them were shot. The order Tuesday says the justices imposed the suspensions after finding that Clark County judges Andrew Adams and Bradley Jacobs and Crawford County Judge Sabrina Bell engaged in judicial misconduct during the May 1 fight outside a fast-food restaurant. The order says all three were intoxicated “and behaving in an injudicious manner” when a night of bar-hopping led to the fight during which Adams and Jacobs were shot. That fight led to charges against Adams and two other men. Under the court's order, Adams will serve a 60-day unpaid suspension ending Jan. 12, and Jacobs and Bell will serve 30-day unpaid suspensions ending Dec. 22.

Remains in Evansville cOncealed in garage

EVANSVILLE — Evansville Police say remains found in the garage of home there are human and were concealed there for an extended period of time. After receiving a tip about a dead person at the home, police went there Monday and discovered the remains in a detached garage. Police said it appears there was an attempt to conceal the body and that it had been there for an extended period of time. The identity of the person whose remains were found hasn't been verified by the Vanderburgh County Coroner's Office, but police say they have a tentative identification.

3 dead in overnight mobile home fire

officials say three people have died in an overnight fire. The Martinsville Fire Department says fire crews dispatched to a mobile home park near State Road 37 early Wednesday found one mobile home fully engulfed in flames. Firefighters extinguished the fire and later confirmed that three people had died in the fire. The identities and ages of those killed in the blaze wasn't immediately known. Officials say an investigation into the cause of the fatal fire is underway in Martinsville.

Feds probe crash of helicopter carrying 3

LEBANON — Federal authorities are investigating a helicopter crash that sent debris flying when the blades struck a parked semitrailer truck. Lebanon police say the helicopter's 50-year-old pilot, Randy A. McCormick of Manteno, Illinois, suffered minor injuries in Sunday afternoon's crash, but two passengers were not injured. Police say a preliminary investigation shows the helicopter's blades made contact with a truck parked at XPO Logistics building when it crashed. The Indianapolis Star reports police say that contact hurled debris into an adjacent parking lot and driveways, striking another semitrailer and three passenger cars. The crash involving a 1958 Sikorsky S-58JT helicopter is being investigated by the Federal Aviation Administration and National Transportation Safety Board.

Fish and Wildlife debuts crime-fighting app

FRANKFORT — Kentucky Fish and Wildlife has debuted a new app that will allow people to report suspected illegal activity. A statement from the agency says it has partnered with tip411 to create the KFW-Law app, which allows people to submit anonymous tips to law enforcement about fish, wildlife or boating. They can also report tips through text messages or the internet. Officials say crime has been reduced in communities around the nation using similar technology. Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's Law Enforcement Division Director Eric Gibson says it's a 21st Century tool to report suspicious activity in real time. The app will supplement the department's longtime tip line, 1-800-25-ALERT. Officials say people should still dial 911 in an emergency.

counties. The state Transportation Cabinet says the Better Utilizing Investments to Leverage Development federal grants are meant to “improve safety, access and mobility for motorists and freight movement.” Along with Paducah, grant awards went to Bourbon and Taylor counties. Bourbon County was awarded $10 million for the reconstruction and widening of US 460 from Centerville to Paris. Taylor County was awarded nearly $10 million to rebuild US 68 from Taylor County to Marion County. The city of Paducah was awarded $10 million to finance riverport improvements, including an excursion pier and plaza, a dock for riverboats and improve accessibility. The grants cover 60% of the combined total costs of the three projects.

Bevin again ordered to release Braidy records

FRANKFORT — Gov. Matt Bevin's administration has again been ordered to release records about Braidy Industries, which is partly owned by the state and plans to build an aluminum mill. The Lexington Herald-Leader reports Franklin County Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd said in a ruling released Tuesday that he reviewed documents submitted by the Cabinet for Economic Development and found four that are within the scope of the Open Records Act and should be released with only minor redactions. The Kentucky Court of Appeals in May upheld part of Shepherd's 2018 ruling that the cabinet had violated the Open Records Act by refusing to release documents to the Courier Journal revealing the identity of stockholders or investors in Braidy Industries. The Kentucky Supreme Court declined to hear the case, and it was sent back to Shepherd.

Supreme Court denies ex-judge's petition

LOUISVILLE — The U.S. Supreme Court has denied a request by a former judge to delay an ethics case against her. Beth Maze petitioned the court in September to temporarily halt proceedings by Kentucky's Judicial Conduct Commission. The commission last week publicly reprimanded Maze and said it would have removed her if she had not retired in October. The commission found Maze attempted to help her ex-husband after his 2017 arrest on drug possession charges. She has been charged in a criminal case with forgery and records tampering. Maze had wanted the high court to delay the commission proceedings to “protect her Fifth Amendment right to remain silent in the criminal case.” The Supreme Court denied the petition Tuesday. Maze was a judge for Rowan, Bath, Montgomery and Menifee counties.

Louisville Archbishop's surgery successful

LOUISVILLE — The Archdiocese of Louisville says the Catholic archbishop is doing well after a seven-hour surgery for his ongoing cancer treatment. News outlets citing The Record report 73-year-old Archbishop Joseph Kurtz announced Tuesday that the surgery was successful. Kurtz says he is up, walking and hoping for a full recovery.

Man burglarized homes to sell scrap metal

LOUISVILLE — Police say they've arrested a prolific thief, a man who they say broke into 17 homes within a few miles of each other. They say he wasn't going for high-end appliances, cash or jewelry: He was in it for the metal. News outlets report 48-year-old David Lee Thurman pleaded not guilty on Monday to 17 burglary counts. Louisville police say in court documents that Thurman admitted he entered homes to steal copper, wiring and air conditioning units and sold them to scrap yards for cash. A preliminary hearing is set for Nov. 21.

Principal charged with child porn possession

WINCHESTER — A principal who once made headlines for trying to ban books with what he deemed inappropriate content has been indicted on child pornography charges. News outlets reported Tuesday that a grand jury charged 54-year-old Phillip Todd Wilson, principal of the Clark County Area Technology Center, with 17 child pornography possession and distribution charges. Kentucky State police filed 15 counts each of the charges against Wilson in August. Clark County Schools officials told news outlets they were “shocked and dismayed” at the accusations. The education department no longer employs Wilson. When Wilson was the principal of Montgomery County High School in 2009, he fought to ban books with what he labeled “homosexual” or otherwise inappropriate material, including sex, abuse and drugs.

Local firefighters battle two house fires in frigid weather

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A Tuesday morning fire resulted in heavy damage to a Republican Township home but all three occupants and the family dog were able to evacuate the structure without injury.

The blaze was reported at about 8:40 a.m. on Polk Road after the family noticed smoke coming from the attic and called firefighters before evacuating into the frigid weather with temperatures in the teens and a light dusting of snow covering the ground and nearby vehicles.

The home is owned by William and Rebecca Stewart. They and an adult son were all home when the blaze broke out and all three evacuated without injury.

"I don't know how it started but smoke was coming from the attic," William Stewart said while watching firefighters from Kent, Deputy, Hanover and Johnson Township deal with the remaining hot spots.

Stewart, who breathes with the aid of oxygen and uses an inhaler, said his lung issues forced him from the home immediately. A good thing too because not long after he exited, flames were shooting out the eaves of the structure and smoke was rolling from both gables of the one-story frame home.

"I'm guessing I'm going to be needing a new house," Stewart said. "(Firefighters) told me it's pretty much totaled."

While the Stewarts lost their home they won't be homeless. He said he has plenty of family so finding someone to take them in won't be a problem.

With the area under its first winter weather advisory of the season, a road crew was called to spread cinders on the narrow lane near the fire scene and assist tanker trucks that were hauling water the 3.5 miles from Blocher to the fire scene.

The fire is under investigation by the Kent Fire Department but the cause appears to be electrical. Firefighters were on scene for about three hours.

Madison Police and Fire personnel responded to an overnight fire at a residence in the 900 block of West Main Street at about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The first arriving units reported heavy fire coming from the rear roof portion of the residence. All occupants had evacuated by that time.

The fire was contained to the structure, with little damage to other structures located less than 3 feet away. The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Madison Fire Department.

Madison fire and police departments, King's Daughters'

Hospital EMS and the Salvation Army all responded to the scene. The Madison Street Department and Indiana Department of Transportation were also involved to spread salt on roadways and sidewalks, due to the freezing overnight temperatures.

acknowledging much more must be done.

The meeting began with Courtney issuing the challenge to "consider this the start of a coalition" and to end with the observation that the meeting had resulted in a "good outcome for now."

It was the end of last week when local government and community service organizations learned that The Salvation Army would not be able to open its overnight warming shelter as it has for the last few years when temperatures dropped below 32 degrees by late afternoon.

The temperatures were predicted to be in the low 20s Friday, which gave a sense of urgency to addressing the need. After a meeting Friday afternoon among Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and several city managers, the Comfort Station became the quickest and most obvious temporary shelter. The city then extended use of the Comfort Station through Monday night.

Against this backdrop, the Tuesday meeting was called to try to understand how the situation had evolved and what options might be available to ensure help for those living on the street.

Courtney told the group it was a "brainstorming session, but we also need to make sure we're protecting life."

Lts. Justin and Stephanie Hartley, new to the Salvation Army in Madison, but not new to the work of the Salvation Army, assured the group they know the vulnerable population to which Courtney referred.

"This is a group of people we know well ... we see them every day in our building," Lt. Stephanie said. "We're doing the best we can with what we have to work with."

Late Monday afternoon, the Hartleys had issued a news release that said in part, "Due to lack of sustainable funding, volunteer and personnel resources, and an adequate facility, The Salvation Army must change how the winter warming center will operate in the winter of 2019-2020. ... As homelessness is a community problem, The Salvation Army is interested in partnering with our community to generate solutions to this difficult problem. The Salvation Army cannot singularly solve this problem in either the short- or long-term. ... The Salvation Army will continue to work together with our city government and other agencies to find an answer to help our community best help those in need. May God give us all the wisdom and compassion to address this very difficult situation."

The conversation that began Tuesday afternoon first focused on gaining a better understanding of why The Salvation Army could not continue to provide the overnight shelter.

Lt. Stephanie explained that the operation is "facing different issues ... different things that have come up."

She said only two volunteers have committed this year.

In addition to the Hartleys, two representatives from the Indianapolis office of The Salvation Army attended the meeting as well as Carol Marsh, the case worker for the local office.

As they talked, they outlined the rules that govern how they can operate overnight shelters, how many volunteers they must have, the training required for those volunteers and the costs associated with additional meal planning and services. They emphasized that there are national standards to be followed and the facility here does not meet those standards at the moment.

Marsh emphasized that "there are rules in place to be able to stay there" and there are "some people not willing to follow the rules," which means they are asked to leave.

When asked about case management services that might be offered, Marsh said there is "not much we don't offer to help with but we have to find resources."

"Most of the homelessness in our community is related to drugs," she added, also acknowledging the special circumstances some veterans face and people who simply find themselves in unexpected bad circumstances.

As the discussion progressed, questions began to focus in on how the community could best help.

When asked the major issue, Lt. Justin said the building is not equipped to be a shelter, but acknowledged that it sheltered about 32 people through much of January and half of February earlier this year.

Asked if the rules might be changed to enable the shelter to continue, Lt. Stephanie said "because it was at 32 in the past doesn't mean it's correct."

"We have to get in compliance or there could be bigger ramifications," she said. She noted that last Friday when concerns about the temperature began, "no one came to us asking for shelter."

The conversation turned to one where participants asked what The Salvation Army needs. Father Chris Craig of Prince of Peace Catholic Church said, "We appreciate the generosity of The Salvation Army, but it's not just The Salvation Army's responsibility."

He offered to reach out to his parishioners for help and money, but noted the big issue is the facility and they have none to offer.

Council president pro-tem Dan Dattilo asked whether other city properties had been considered and whether if volunteers and supplies could be found, could they find a way to offer aid for the time being.

As the conversation continued to pursue how to come together to provide supplies and volunteers, Lt. Stephanie, who had been talking quietly with the other Salvation Army representatives, reiterated some of the options being considered and said, "If we can get a full volunteer group and custodial help. ... If we can make that work this year. ... Maybe come spring, we ... would consider this a transitional year."

There was a collective hush in the room, broken only when Courtney asked her if he had heard correctly that she might be offering a longer-term way to meet this need with community help.

From that point on, the conversation focused on details of what funding is needed, how many volunteers are needed, what training they need, other services and the many required details to make the shelter comply with national standards.

Lt. Stephanie said they would need to crunch numbers to determine the amount of money needed to increase the food services and add to the other needed supplies because money cannot be diverted from other funds. The Army receives no government money at either the federal, state or local level and all money collected in the annual Red Kettle campaign stays locally.

Marsh, the Salvation Army case worker here in Madison, noted "we do the best we can 24/7" but "we need help."

"We're doing everything we can," she said.

The remainder of the meeting was filled with questions and answers about details of needs and discussions of how to go about addressing those needs.

After an inventory of any possible city properties, Courtney said it had been determined that the building that houses the restrooms at Bicentennial Park was probably the best option among city property to move the warming shelter from the Comfort Station.

"It's not ideal," he said, "but functional for the next four nights." The extreme cold of this week is predicted to ease by next weekend.

As he closed the meeting, Courtney told that group that he feels confident the "good, compassionate people in our community" will step up to be part of finding ways to move forward.

Later in the afternoon, he issued a statement saying, "I'm grateful for such diverse participation and The Salvation Army's willingness to continue providing invaluable services to the vulnerable in our community. For us to be successful we will need the volunteer and financial support of our community, which I know we can accomplish by working together for a common purpose."

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY RUNNER OF THE YEAR

Positive attitude served freshman Alderman well

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

As hard as it is to believe, Calli Alderman wasn't exactly pumped about the upcoming cross country season when school started in August. But while the Shawe freshman may have had her doubts at the beginning, there were none by the time her season ended.

Alderman capped a spectacular freshman campaign with a 51st-place finish in the semistate on a cold, rainy day in Brown County. Along the way, she claimed an Ohio River Valley Conference championship and two other meets, finished second at at sectional and 10th in the regional.

That strong season was more than enough to net Alderman the Madison Courier's Girls Cross Country Runner of the Year award.

"She's so young and she's got plenty to go. If she puts in some work, she's going to be a lot better."

Shawe coach Jim Leveille said. "Making state next year and doing well at state is a worthy ambition for her and I think she's got it in her. Where she's at and where she needs to go, it's a pretty short journey."

Alderman has been running since she was in fourth grade but it's not the only sport in which she excels. This past season alone she played soccer for the Hilltoppers and is already hard at work in basketball. The spring will bring track & field as well as tennis.

All of those sports can take up some time but the always affable Alderman takes it all in stride. "I always liked running when I was a little kid. It just makes me feel good when I'm running," Alderman said. "It's kind of difficult (playing several sports) and I also have to keep up with my academics. But I manage my time and it's pretty good."

Alderman's season wasn't exactly a surprise. She was a dominate force throughout her junior high years — winning the ORVC as a fifth grader and again in eighth grade — and she didn't miss a beat once she started high school. She won her first two meets of the campaign and finished in the top 10 all but twice — the tough Silver Creek Invitational in late September and at semistate.

A week after running her best time of the year to place 10th at the regional in 19:56.7, Alderman battled through the slop as the remnants of Tropical Storm Oscar bore down on Brown County to finish 51st in 20:43.4, just 10 spots away from advancing to state.

Despite the horrible conditions,

“She’s so young and she’s got plenty to go. If she puts in some work, she’s going to be a lot better. Making state next year and doing well at state is a worthy ambition for her and I think she’s got it in her. Where she’s at and where she needs to go, it’s a pretty short journey.”

Shawe coach Jim Leveille

Alderman said she enjoyed herself.

"It was super muddy and raining the entire time, but it was fun ... after it was over," she said, laughing. "It was cold at the beginning but I got used to the rain and the puddles and it was fun."

That positive attitude is what Leveille says is Alderman's greatest strength. Sure, she's a gifted runner, but she also tackles the sport with a smile on her face.

"She's fun to be around and she's got a great sense of humor. She's not one of these people that complains about workouts and all of that," Leveille said. "No kid likes to be out in 100 degrees running Hatcher Hill but she gets out there and she does it."

"Any good long distance runner has to have a certain mental toughness and ability to disengage," Leveille added. "There is pain, even for a good runner, but to not let that bother you and to not let it psyche you out when you get to the line, is big. She just puts it out of her mind and runs."

While basketball is occupying her time and focus now, Alderman and her coach have already begun looking ahead to next season as she takes aim at securing a spot in the state finals. With one successful season in the books, she wants to keep getting even better.

"I want to make it to state, for sure," Alderman said. "That's one of my big goals."

Hanover, Franklin set to renew Victory Bell rivalry

Trophy was first awarded in 1938

Hanover leads series 43-42-3

By KYLE WILLIS

Special to The Madison Courier

The only thing better than winning is beating your biggest rival, and the rivalry between the football programs at Hanover and Franklin colleges cannot be overstated. It's a game both teams look forward to playing each year.

The Victory Bell game between the Panthers and Grizzlies is a long-standing tradition, with the victor snagging the right to take home the bell and display it at their school for the following year.

The annual clash of adversaries began in 1898, but the Victory Bell itself was first awarded in 1938. In 2007, the original bell was broken and replaced with the current bell.

Last season's game proved to be an instant classic. Hanover had the ball in Franklin territory with under a minute to go and facing fourth down. Rather than punt, coach Matt Theobald made the gutsy decision to go for the first down.

"We weren't giving them the ball back," Theobald said. His trust paid off as the Panthers converted on fourth down and went on to win the game and the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference title.

It had been 14 years since Hanover had taken home the bell and 15 years since it had won the conference.

"When I'm on my death bed, I hope that's one thing that I remember," Theobald said.

For seniors, the Bell game also usually marks their last time putting on the pads. "It's a really special moment for everyone," said Hanover senior and captain Kaleb Grabert.

Despite having already clenched the conference title thanks to last weekend's win at Rose-Hulman, Hanover will not take Franklin lightly.

"We just have to stay focused, play our game and not get cocky," said Connor Gibson, another senior and captain on the team

This year's Victory Bell game will be played at Alumni Stadium on Saturday with kick off at 1:30 p.m.

Evansville stuns No. 1 Kentucky

By GARY B. GRAVES
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Evansville showed no fear either of Kentucky or venerable Rupp Arena, where the Wildcats had been perfect at ruining visitors' dreams of pulling off the seemingly impossible. Until Tuesday night.

Not only did the Purple Aces deal No. 1 Kentucky a stunning 67-64 upset, they beat the bigger, stronger Wildcats at their own game. When it was over, players, coaches and their fans whooped it up in a corner of the famed court, making sure they savored every bit of a momentous victory.

"To be here is a dream come true," Evansville sophomore forward DeAndre Williams said. "We took advantage and we made history."

Sam Cunliffe scored 17 points, including two free throws with 6.8 seconds remaining to silence Kentucky (2-1) and a crowd of 19,101 — most of whom had expected a routine nonconference win from the Wildcats, who were 25-point favorites and had earned the top ranking a day earlier.

Those expectations never materialized as Evansville (2-0) controlled the younger Wildcats on both ends of the floor.

K.J. Riley added 18 points as the Purple Aces — coached by Walter McCarty, who won a national title with Kentucky in 1996 — pulled off the biggest upset in program history with their first win over a No. 1 team in three tries.

Evansville led much of the game and answered each Kentucky rally with clutch baskets to grab the lead and then maintain it for the season's biggest upset. Kentucky had been 39-0 at home against unranked, non-conference opponents when ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll. Evansville, meanwhile, got its first-ever road win over an AP-ranked team.

"Walter and their team deserved to win," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "If we would have somehow pulled it out, it would have been, kind of wouldn't even have been fair because they fought us the whole game and they were the tougher team."

"They executed, they made shots and 3s and free throws. My hat's off to them. It's hard to do that in this building, but they were more ready to play. He had his team better prepared than I had my team."

Tyrese Maxey's lineup with 8 seconds remaining got Kentucky within 65-64, but Cunliffe stepped to the line and calmly made both ends of the 1-and-1 as his teammates locked arms on the bench. The Purple Aces raised their hands and ran around a silent Rupp Arena after the final horn as the Wildcats slowly walked off.

Immanuel Quickley led Kentucky with 16 points, and Maxey scored 15.

Cunliffe, a redshirt junior guard who played at Arizona State and Kansas, did most of his damage with 15 first-half points off the bench.

"It's amazing. You come to a school like this and you talk about doing things like this and making history and playing in front of these bright lights," Cunliffe said. "We prepared the right way. We had our mind set in the right spot that we could actually do it. It is surreal."

Evansville won just 11 games last season, its first under McCarty, who played in the NBA for 10 years and was an assistant at Louisville under Rick Pitino — his coach at Kentucky — and in the NBA before returning to his hometown to coach the Purple Aces.

Evansville made nine of 30 3-point attempts while shooting 38% from the field to Kentucky's 37%. The Aces also outrebounded the Wildcats 38-35 and were edged by just 30-28 in points in the paint.

"We started off saying, OK, we're going to punch them in the mouth and not let them punch us in the mouth first," Williams said. "Once we started getting stops, they started turning the ball over, things like that. We saw that and we took advantage."

BIG PICTURE

Evansville: The Purple Aces stuck to their game plan, shooting from deep and outrunning the Wildcats. They trailed just once in the second half and dictated the tempo most of the night.

"We just believed and trusted each other and made plays for each other. Guys came out and gave their all. They've got a good basketball team. Kentucky's going to be a really good team, going to be around at the end of it," McCarty said. "We played a heck of a game tonight."

Kentucky: Missed shots and turnovers forced the Wildcats to play from behind. Even after they managed to tie and take a brief lead, they were beaten to loose balls and could never get over the hump.

"They played with energy for 40 minutes," Kentucky forward Nate Sestina said. "They had guys who wanted to win and wanted to play hard for 40 minutes. If a guy got tired, they were able to sub somebody else in."

TIME MANAGEMENT

Evansville spent 29:34 in front, while Kentucky led for just 5:44.

POLL IMPLICATIONS

A week earlier, it was then-No. 2 Kentucky knocking off the top-ranked team, outlasting Michigan State at Madison Square Garden in the season opener for both squads. It's the first time in AP poll history that two No. 1 teams have lost in November, and the Wildcats' stay at the top of the poll will end next week.

Indiana uses FTs to pull away from North Alabama

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana Hoosiers coach Archie Miller wanted Trayce Jackson-Davis to be more aggressive offensively and defensively.

He responded just the way Miller had hoped.

The highly-touted freshman scored a season-high 20 points, grabbed eight rebounds, blocked three shots and made 14 of 15 free throws Tuesday, leading the Hoosiers past North Alabama 91-65.

"I've been telling him this since 10th grade — he's going to get fouled a lot," Miller said. "He's left-handed, kind of awkward, can draw fouls in different ways and he's always done that. Fourteen of 15 from the line, that's big."

Actually, it was crucial.

A year ago, Indiana shot 65.5% from the line. On Tuesday, the Hoosiers were 37 of 45 from — largely because of Jackson-Davis and his revamped motion.

"Coach and I really just put an emphasis on not starting it down low and putting it up," Jackson-Davis said, describing the form. "It's worked pretty well for me."

Unbeaten Indiana (3-0) certainly won't complain.

And Jackson-Davis got plenty of help, too. Rob Phinisee finished with 13 points and six assists and redshirt freshman Jerome Hunter scored a season-high 12 points.

But the second-year Division I program sure didn't make it easy on the Hoosiers.

Jamari Blackmon made his first four 3-pointers and North Alabama stayed close throughout the first half despite committing 10 turnovers, drawing 17 fouls and having five shots blocked.

Indiana finally broke away with a 10-1 run late in the first half to take a 41-31 lead and was still clinging to a 50-43 edge 2½ minutes into the second half.

Jackson-Davis answered with eight straight points to start a 15-2 spurt and the Lions (1-2) never recovered.

Blackmon scored 19 points while C.J. Brim and Christian Agnew each had 11 to lead North Alabama.

"I think our guys struggled a little bit with the physicality down low and unfortunately shots weren't going down," coach Tony Pujol said. "I think what we struggled with was defending without fouling. When you send a team to the line 45 times, it's pretty hard to win that game."

BIG PICTURE

North Alabama: A trip to Assembly Hall could have been intimidating and overwhelming. Instead, the Lions went toe to toe with the Hoosiers until the turnovers and mounting fouls finally took a heavy toll.

The future looks bright for this young team, which had no seniors in the starting lineup.

Indiana: The Hoosiers remained poised as North Alabama refused to go away, then quietly put the game away with free throws and defense. Miller is one win away from his first 4-0 start since coming to Bloomington three years ago.

STAT SHEET

North Alabama: The Lions were called for 32 fouls, including a technical for flopping, and wound up with 22 turnovers. ... Midway through the second half, North Alabama had as many turnovers as rebounds (19). ... Two players fouled out and two more finished with four fouls. ... The Lions started 7 of 10 on 3s but went 0 for 4 from beyond the arc in the second half.

Indiana: Al Durham scored 11 points and Damezi Anderson had 10. ... Justin Smith had three points and two rebounds in 19½ minutes. ... Jackson-Davis also drew eight fouls. ... Indiana's bench outscored North Alabama 46-23.

THE ROAR

Fans inside Assembly Hall cheered loudly as the Hoosiers started pulling away in the second half, saving their loudest applause for Jackson-Davis' spectacular alley-oop dunk from Anderson.

The second loudest roar came when Evansville's victory over No. 1 Kentucky was posted on the scoreboard. Indiana and Kentucky haven't played since 2016 but the rivalry lives on as evidenced by the students started chanting "Ev-ans-ville."

After ending Top 25 poll drought, No. 24 Indiana chases new goals

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

Coach Tom Allen walked into Indiana's team meeting Monday and congratulated his players for ending one streak.

He quickly urged them to start a new one.

One day after No. 24 Indiana cracked the Top 25 for the first time in more than a quarter-century, the Hoosiers spent some time talking about what needs to be done so they can stick around a while.

"This is something we live for," senior receiver Donovan Hale said. "This is why we came to Indiana, to try to change the program. We've got players that are super hungry and want to create change."

Clearly, the Hoosiers (7-2, 4-2 Big Ten) have gone a long way toward doing that with this season's resume.

They've won seven games for the first time since 2007. They've won four straight conference games for the first time since 1993. They won at Nebraska for the first time since 1958. And now they've shed the dubious distinction of going the longest time between rankings among Power Five conference schools.

Indiana last appeared in the Top 25 on Sept. 20, 1994. That weekend, the 25th-ranked Hoosiers lost 62-13 at No. 16 Wisconsin and didn't return to the rankings until Sunday; the longest stint between rankings now belongs to rival Purdue, which hasn't been in the Top 25 since 2007.

Allen never doubted it was possible but he needed to set smaller goals, first.

After taking over as the Hoosiers' defensive coordinator in 2016, Allen set a seemingly unthinkable goal for the program — creating a top-tier defense. When Allen was promoted to head coach before the 2016 bowl game, he told everyone he believed the Hoosiers should be a Top 25 program.

But after finishing 5-7 in each of his first two seasons as head coach then losing starting quarterback Michael Penix Jr. to a series of injuries this season, the doubters figured the breakthrough year would be put on hold.

Allen never wavered, confidently explaining to players they could make it this year.

HOW TO PLAY:

Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the numbers 1 through 9 without repetition.

BRIDGE

HIGH-CARD POINTS POINT THE WAY

Edward Hodnett, in "The Art of Problem Solving," wrote, "If you don't ask the right questions, you don't get the right answers. A question asked in the right way often points to its own answer. Asking questions is the ABC of diagnosis. Only the inquiring mind solves problems."

This certainly applies at the bridge table, and the most important thing to ask yourself relates to high-card points. Who has how many?

In today's deal, how should South play in three diamonds? West leads the heart jack. East takes three tricks with his queen, king and ace, then shifts to a spade.

Some players would open one spade in fourth position, treating that hand as if it were 5-4 in the majors. Here, that would work well if it were a pairs tournament because nine tricks can be taken in spades. Plus 140 would outscore all of the plus 110s in diamonds. When South opened with a textbook one diamond, though, North made a limit raise, and South passed. (If you use inverted minor-suit raises, do they apply by a passed hand? They do in my partnerships.)

Declarer can afford one diamond loser but not two. This requires finding an opponent with ace-doubleton. But which opponent is more likely to have that trump holding?

South should remember the bidding and count the points. East is known to have nine points in hearts, but he couldn't open the bidding. So, he cannot have the diamond ace. This signposts the right route. After winning trick four, declarer plays a diamond to dummy's king, then calls for a diamond and plays low from his hand. When West's ace appears, South is home.

TORRUN

Torrun is named from Norse mythology after Thor’s love. It fits her well since she is a lover. When she hears “kitty,” she runs to get some loving. She is a two-year-old female domestic short hair who is a very friendly and loving cat. She wants attention 24-7 but don’t worry if you don’t give it to her, as she will come get it herself. She is a very outgoing cat when the shelter staff opens her cage and goes as far as jumping on the staff’s shoulders so she can love on them up close and personal.

We give so much more than we get with family and friends

Dear Annie: My wife and I feel we are being taken advantage of by our family and friends. I think we have gone over and above with acts of kindness. Some family members don’t even talk to us, let alone acknowledge birthdays and holidays. When we went to church recently, the theme of the pastor’s homily was that as you give to others, so you will be rewarded.

I have just about had it. The more we do, the less respected we are and the more we are taken advantage of. — Feeling Used

Dear Feeling Used: Giving should come from wanting to give and the sense of joy you get when you see someone smile in response to your kind acts. Still, if you feel like you are crossing mountains for your friends and they are barely stepping over a log in the forest for you, it might be time to set some clear boundaries about what you will and won’t do. There is nothing mean about saying no sometimes. The meanest thing you can do is overextend yourself so that you feel resentful. Then you won’t be of service to anyone, especially those closest to you — your family and friends.

Dear Annie: I need to know: What is it with people who don’t reply in any way, shape or form — no phone call, email, text or old-fashioned thank-you card — for birthday gifts? For years, I have been giving one particular family of three boys generous birthday checks or gift cards. I have yet to get any sort of thank-you.

When the boys were younger, I knew that task fell to their parents, which they never performed. But now that all three of the boys are older and way savvier with technology than I am — and also have their own computers, tablets and cellphones — I still don’t get thanked. You’d think their parents would give them with the address or phone number they need in order to acknowledge a birthday gift that has been arriving on every birthday since they were born. — Just Don’t Get It

Dear Just Don’t Get It: These boys are the ones who just don’t get it. And this situation clearly started with the parents. It is the parents’ job to teach their children to show appreciation, and if this important lesson wasn’t taught to them when they were young, it’s no surprise they aren’t showing gratitude as grown adults.

If you really care about continuing to have a relationship with them, you might want to jokingly ask, “Did you get my birthday gifts?” Sending thank-you notes is a nice courtesy to family members, and it’s just plain good manners. By being straightforward and talking with them, you could point out that there are many stories about people who were hired for their dream job because they wrote great thank-you notes after an interview. What you appreciate appreciates.
